Weekly report:

Definitions of these words and example

- mkdir: allows users to create or make new directories mkdir --help
- touch:is a standard command used in UNIX/Linux operating system which is used to create, change and modify timestamps of a file. -t
- rm:used to remove objects such as computer files, directories and symbolic links from file systems and also special files such as device nodes rm -rf foobar
- rmdir:used remove empty directories from the filesystem in Linux. This will first remove the child directory and then remove the parent directory.This will first remove the child directory and then remove the parent directory.
- cp:This command is used to copy files or group of files or directory. cp -R
- mv:command that moves one or more files or directories from one place to another. mv -f
- ln:is a standard Unix command utility used to create a hard link or a symbolic link to an existing file or directory. ln -s /var/www /home/www
- man: is the system's manual pager.man -a